PETITION OF SHIP FIRMS DISMISSED

Assurance Of Protection
By Fenders Made
By Engineer

The world's greatest highway bridge will open today with thousands of persons joining hands in celebration of the conquest of Carquinez straits.

That was assured yesterday when Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure in seven words dismissed an action brought by the Matson Navigation Company and the California-Hawaiian Sugar Company for an injunction that would have closed the huge structure.

St. Sure's decision followed the announcement by Professor Charles Derlich, Jr., chief engineer of the bridge, that Major J. W. N. Schulz, district engineer, had ordered additional fender protection for the central piers four days ago and that the order had been complied with.

Action O. K'D.

Thereupon attorneys representing the shipping interests announced that such action would be satisfactory to their clients, but asked that the matter be continued for a week. Judge St. Sure denied the continuance and declared: "The order to show cause is dismissed."

Until permanent fender plans are approved by the War Department, Professor Derlich said four ships will be placed upstream and downstream in triangular formation around the piers in conformity with the order of Major Schulz.

ALL ABOARD FOR BRIDGE DEDICATION

"Join the Carquinez Caravan"; get in line at 10:00 o'clock this morning with a thousand other motorists on Macdonald avenue near San Pablo avenue. If you haven't secured your official windshield stickers and pass to Richmond's parking field near the bridge, they will be available for you at the assembly place this morning.

This was the final announcement made by Aubrey Wilson, chairman of the "On to Carquinez" committee of the Chamber of Commerce, arranging for Richmond's participation in the big ceremony, dedicating and formally opening the Carquinez Bridge today.

John A. Miller, one of the most energetic and enthusiastic members of the committee announces that all arrangements have been made for the use of the Thomas R. Hanna property as a parking field for Richmond members of the "On to Carquinez" caravan.

"Each Richmond motorist will be supplied with an admission card, issued by courtesy of Hanna through the Chamber of Commerce," said Miller yesterday. "Be sure and get out of these cards. It will save you time and trouble and assure you of a fine parking place near the bridge. There will be tremendous traffic to Carquinez tomorrow and that is why Richmond has reserved a special parking field instead of crossing the bridge to the parking field on the Voljevo side."

Every Richmond plan to motor to the bridge today is urged to join the Richmond caravan, assembling on Macdonald avenue near San Pablo, beginning at 10:00 a. m. Assembly contingent will join Oakland, San Francisco and other bay cities at 11:00 a. m. shortly before as it swings north on San Pablo.

Richmond 'Harbor Day' Will Commemorate Dredging Work

In commemoration of a new era in Richmond's harbor and industrial development, "Harbor Day" will be celebrated at a great public luncheon to be held at the New Hotel Carquinez, next Thursday, May 25th, sponsored by the Richmond Chamber of Commerce.

The event will specifically commemorate the beginning of dredging operations by the United States government in Richmond's inner harbor where channels 200 feet wide and 30 feet deep and large turning basins will be dug for the accommodation of deep-water ships.

The dredging marks the second important step in carrying out the program embodied under the Parr Terminal lease with the City of Richmond and the agreement under which the Ford Motor Company located its $2,000,000 standard assembly plant in Richmond. The first step was the construction of the 16-foot levee encircling more than 122 acres of waterfront land, including the 62-acre Ford plant site.

Honored guests at the luncheon next Thursday will include Congressman Charles F. Curry, veteran member of the lower house of congress and an outstanding friend of Richmond in securing federal appropriations for harbor improvement; Assemblyman Robert P. Easley who did notable work at the recent meeting of the State legislature in engineering through both houses the 50-year harbor franchise bill and the bill giving cities the right to lease their waterfront lands where such a lease does not conflict with the title held by the state, both of which were of vital importance to Richmond.

OPEN MURDOCK TRACT TODAY TO BUYERS

"Richmond people first," is the policy announced by C. P. Murdock, Incorporated in connection with plans for the opening of its new sub-division, Metropolitan Square—at Twenty-third and Macdonald avenue. This property is the piece bought some months ago by Murdock from the John Nicholl estate, and it has since been laid out for development as the foremost business, apartment house and fine residential center, not only of Richmond but of the whole East Bay Metropolitan area also.

The improvements now under way will cost more than $250,000 and will include paved streets, concrete sidewalks and curbs, electric lines on the main interior thoroughfares, sewers, water and gas mains and power lines.

According to Murdock, the time is now ripe for Richmond to step into its natural place of dominance over all the development taking place from Antioch on the North to Hayward on the South. Besides giving this city a central location, nature also made here an ideal combination of waterfront, level plain and scenic hills, where two great inland waterways meet the world's largest ocean and where two transcontinental railways break thru the hills to the coast. Roger Babson, American's foremost forecaster, says: "It is only a question of time when the Pacific ocean will carry three-quarters of the world's trade." CURRY TO PUSH FLOOD CONTROL BILLS THROUGH

WASHINGTON, May 20.—With flood control already agreed upon as one of the major planks in the administration's legislation program for the seventh congress, Representative Charles F. Curry, dean of the California delegation, will be one of President Coolidge's chief lieutenants in piloting this portion of the program through the House.

Long a member of the flood control commission, whose chairmanship he has twice declined, Curry will retain his membership as the committee's ranking Republican, and will be called upon with Representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois, the chairman, to take charge of the legislative maneuvering both in committee and on the floor of the House.

Curry has made a close study of flood control problems, not only those that have arisen in connection with the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers in his own district, but as well the Mississippi and other streams. He has long been recognized as one of the best

THE COURAGEOUS JURY

THE VERDICT in the Gray-Snyder murder case has brought sudden respect for criminal juries, at a time when they needed it. Lately it has been almost impossible to find an American jury that would do its duty, quietly, sanely and promptly, influenced by fundamental considerations of fact and justice rather than sentimentality. That jury has set a good example.

[This is said without regard to the merits of capital punishment itself.]

There is serious doubt in the mind of the American public today as to whether it is right or wise for society to continue applying the death penalty—whether it really serves the purpose of justice and civilized progress to apply the old Mosaic code of "a life for a life." But the law still stands on the statute books, in nearly all of our states, and is still regarded by most thoughtful persons as the greatest deterrent to murder. The scandalous pre-eminence of this country in its murder record, and the slight regard which appears to be felt for human life among the criminal and the morally weak is held to be due largely to the failure of American juries to apply this extreme penalty.

Perhaps life imprisonment would be a satisfactory substitute. Many believe it would be if properly enforced, and not rendered futile and farcical as it is in so many cases by untimely pardons and paroles. Any lesser punishment than death, to be effective, must be stern and certain.

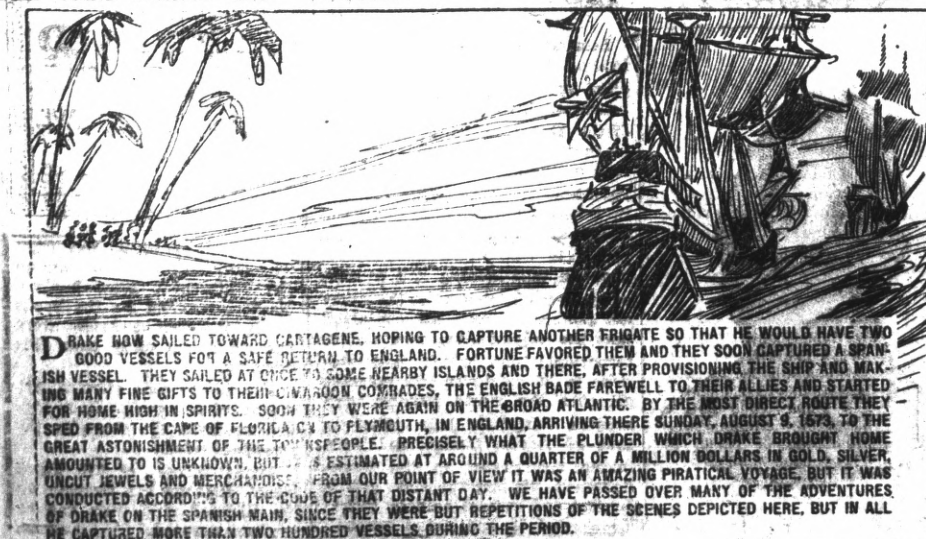

In the absence of any adequate substitute, it is well not to discard lightly the only weapon society now possesses which obviously throws the fear of God into the hearts of murderers and tends to make potential killings take such crimes more seriously. A jury that will vote this dread penalty, as did the jury in question, without any evidence of the weakness, indecision and sloppy emotionalism that have characterized so many of our murder juries, deserves the thanks of the nation.

How To EARN MONEY at HOME

By Sara Spence

There is a woman left in the world who wants to make money at home. I wish she would write me. There is a great demand for home work now. Country homes are being furnished. Cushions, hangings, lamp shades, summer house dresses, smocks to match the hangings—all sorts of things are needed. Then there is cake baking and ever-present need. What is the use of sitting idle when there is so much to be done?

My husband is very sick and for it. Thank you very much.

Success. There is an enormous industry in a thing of this sort. Try writing for pets, cats, dogs and birds into your rugs.

I can't do anything except bake. "Kitchen Woman."

I do wish I could have printed the whole of your nice letter and signed your name to it. I think baking is a wonderful accomplishment. Try making little cup cakes, frosted in beautiful shades of pink. I know a friend who buys 300 a day for his soda fountain.

There are other druggists who will buy if they have a chance.

Mrs. Sarah Spence will answer all questions on "How to Earn Money at Home." Address her care of this paper.

I am making rugs. I believe the whole world has gone rug crazy. I bought a loom as you suggested. I wove a picture of a country place. The woman bought it to hang on her wall. I got $3.00.

Efface Skin Blemishes By Use Of Simple Remedies

By LADY BEATRICE GREY

(Advice in this column is confined strictly to natural methods.)

"I have read many articles on beauty," writes Mrs. Christine C. "I have never been able to find just exactly what I want. The object of my quest is a quick, sure cure for blackheads and enlarged pores. I have used one cream after another.

"I have queried beauty specialists after beauty specialists. Many simply evade the issue, while others offer a set of rules that would stagger the average individual. And the blackheads and enlarged pores remain. As woman to woman, Lady Beatrice, what are your views on the subject?"

A large order, this. In the first place I can say without fear of contradiction that the beauty surgeon who discovers a quick, sure cure for blackheads and enlarged pores has a fortune within her grasp.

If the case is of long standing—and the average woman rarely begins to look for "cures" until there is something seriously wrong—it stands to reason that a cure cannot be effected over night.

Blackheads and enlarged pores may come from a number of causes—faulty diet, lack of exercise in the open air, neglect, uncleanliness, the use of inferior cosmetics, lack of fresh air in sleeping quarters—and so on. And the cause rather than the effect should be given first consideration.

For blackheads, pimples and other eruptive conditions of the skin there is sometimes a stage when a simple laxative in the form of fresh fruit juices will aid the cure, but diet and exercise are also of great importance. Any treatment should be based on the fundamental principle of setting the body to rights on the inside.

Remember that the skin reflects any violation of Nature's laws just as surely as the state of the weather is indicated by the barometer.

Any internal derangement affects most unfavorably the capillary circulation of the face skin. Not only is this true as to disorders of the digestion but also as to derangements of the nervous system.

Outdoor exercise is extremely important. The dust-laden air and artificial heat indoors superinduce inactivity of the skin, thus clogging the pores and causing blackheads.

When it comes to cleanliness—cleanliness means vastly more than scrubbing the face with soap and warm water. It means that the whole body must be kept clear. It means clean wash cloths, clean powder cloths. The puff that I passed from one person to another is a source of many skin troubles. The dainty French woman uses rather than a puff of cotton, which she discards before it is the least bit soiled.

Do not look for a lightning cure. Think of the years of neglect and abuse that are responsible for this condition. On the other hand, you'll be surprised to see how quickly your skin will respond to a little faithful, intelligent care. And what if it does take a few weeks of care with hygienic habits of eating and living to effect a cure? Isn't it worth it? For, after all, a flawless complexion gives one a certain feeling of poise and self-confidence that few other things can give.

Questions concerning beauty building through physical culture will receive the personal attention of Lady Grey, beauty culturist, and should be signed by the writer's full name and address, which will not be used without permission. Address her, care of this newspaper.

The Smartest Thing My Dog Ever Did

We have a dog named Rex. We taught him not to take anything to eat until we say "Yes."

One night my father had a piece of meat which he was going to give Rex, so he laid it on the floor and said, "No! Don't take it!" My father, being very sleepy, fell asleep. When he woke up an hour later Rex was still looking at the meat.

What it's all about

By PAUL ALLEN

THOUGH IN THE MIDDLE of the century, it is not yet a year since the United States has been in a state of withdrawal and the little republic left to govern itself almost alone. Uncle Sam will always keep a watchful eye in that direction. Any Nicaraguan president who wants to do things his own way will be handled promptly, if not gently.

Central American Nations

have a reputation for getting into trouble with no trouble at all. Any election is good enough to start a revolution. The result is that there is usually a sniping war going on. Soldiers join whatever general is able to pay the most money. At the first sign of real battle a whole army is likely to melt away like a plate of ice cream at a Fourth of July picnic.

THE PRINCIPAL PRODUCT OF Nicaragua is bananas. The principal occupation is lying in a hammock. "Why work?" is the unanswerable question of natives. Tropical trees and plants provide all they can eat, shelter is a simple matter of piling together a few sticks and covering them over with grass. Because they don't have to work hard the natives scarcely work at all. And not having the advantages of movies, they get their excitement out of revolutions. They feel quite angry that the United States should have busted up their pleasant pastime.

Nicaraguans will not be greatly excited about the prediction of Harvey Wiley Corbett that fifty years from now food will be broadcast by radio. Why go to the trouble of broadcasting a banana when you can swing your hammock under a banana tree and let the ripe fruit drop into your lap?

J. R. TROTTER OF PASADENA suggests that the easiest food to broadcast will be currants. If there happens to be static, I suppose they'll arrive at the other end in the form of currant jelly.

Via Radio, 1927: Dad—Son, turn on the juice, will you?

Lad—Whaddya want? Apple juice, grape juice or lemonade?

Dad—See if you can't reach some long distance beer.

Lad—Nothin' doin'. The only beer on the air is so near you can't tell it from water.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is an orphan. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary, but she disbelieves in love. Mary's elder brother, David, is sentenced to prison for an auto fatality. The Charity Department takes Bobby, the younger, Mary gets a job in a night club. It is revealed that Mary, judged to have "criminal influences," is sentenced to reform school. She runs away to visit Bobby, who is ill. Arthur Graham, rich young man involved in David's conviction, takes her and Bobby to live with him; and proposes to her.

"Shall we take a walk, Mary?"

"Yes."

Arthur Graham took her hand and led her out to the garden path, a path splattered with the dust of the stars, of which there were millions. There was a silver haze in the velvet of the heavens. The trees rustled with the whisper of countless messages. "It's perfect," said Mary, and her hand held Arthur's tightly. There was an ache in her throat because she wanted to cry with the beauty of it.

Arthur's voice came to her through the brush of the night upon her cheek. "Is everything perfect, Mary?"

"Everything."

They strolled the length of the walk and turned, is everything perfect, Mary? No, nothing is perfect, Arthur. There's David to whom the delight of this night is lent, and—and—well that is all. He folded her hand over his arm.

"Mary dear—"

"Yes?" She lifted the little pointed face with the fringe of hair that lay like a gloss on her forehead.

"I want you to know—that I love you."

B. Jasper Graham grunted. "Well—well—well—with it!" although he knew too. There was the enjoyment of watching Arthur turn a deep red, though, Arthur with the air of a boy, and the little lines that forked from the corners of his eyes.

"Glad to hear it," said B. Jasper. "Glad to hear it," said B. Jasper. "Glad to hear it," said B. Jasper.

"Yes, mother knew. 'Gad, father, you're the truest—'"

"Spare me. Spare me," old Jasper twinkled. He turned to Mary, who had been standing in the light of the reading lamp, waiting for this bit of intimacy to have done. There was something fine about old B. Jasper. Mary thought. Arthur would be that way some day. Taciturn, probably, and crusty, but with the gold of his purse turning his heart melting.

"Well now, Mary, what about an engagement gift, eh?"

"It would be very nice," she dimpled.

"It would, hey? It would, hey? Name it, girl, and it's yours."

She would ask for silver-tipped shoes—but Arthur was giving her those—

"There is nothing—"

"Nothing, Mary? Come, come—a pretty gift," said Mary.

"I should like," said Mary, and the thought of David swept across her face leaving it a bit wan. "I should like to see David—and tell him—"

B. Jasper fumed. "You'll see him. You'll see him soon enough. An engagement gift, Mary?"

"That is what I should like," said Mary soberly.

"Well—well," it was disappointing to tell it to her now, but if she would prefer that about everything else she should have it, the pretty little filly with the hair that swung.

Arthur could no longer contain the news. "We've been planning that for some weeks now, dear. Father is using his influence to have David freed from prison."

"Mary!" He caught her where she staggered.

"Now, now, Mary, what's all this?"

"I'm all right," said Mary weakly. "It was a bit sudden—you'll admit it was sudden? Oh dear," she pushed the hair from her forehead with her free hand.

Arthur, anxiously as he beat to peer into her face, "You're all right, dear?"

"Of course—of course—and if I'm not, it's just happiness! Oh, Arthur!" She put her handkerchief to her face and came to lean it against Jasper's breast, while he stroked her hair, muttering, "Now—now—a pretty little filly like you—"

"This is perfectly ridiculous, and I'm ashamed of myself," sobbed Mary against B. Jasper, "but I'm so happy!"

"Shouldn't have thrown it at her that way, Dad."

"She's all right, boy. Be Mary!"

"Perfectly," and after wiping the tears from her cheeks and eyes she turned a radiant face to both men, though the tears welled again and rased unshed down the course of her cheeks.

Club Mendelssohn Presents Program Of Music And Drama

Many enjoyed the interesting afternoon recital given yesterday by the Mendelssohn club in Memorial hall. Mrs. James Stuart gave the address of welcome to the crowded hall. A talented trio from Martinez, composed of Florence Lancaster, Harriet, soprano; Elvira Johnson, pianist; and Maude Miller, violinist, opened the program by the presentation of "In Autumn" and "Spring" both by Wolf. "Beneath the Branches" by D. Ardelot followed and was enthusiastically received.

The premier artist, Professor Anthony Pank, of the University of California extension division, gave a reading of Walter Hampton's version of Robert Browning's poem "The Ring" by Charles Gounod given by the club.

The play which has been making a success on Broadway for the past two years is ranging under the title of "The Enemy of the Catonsville" and is considered good enough to rank among the classics.

The audience was highly pleased with the all Italian drama and "Shanewis" by Charles Waackfield Cadman. The last number on the program was "Sing, Smile, Slurp" by Charles Gounod given by the three clever young artists.

Opposed

HOLDING that the post should go to a resident of the district, Representative Charles E. Curry of California has forwarded protests to President Coolidge and Attorney Gen. Sargent against the proposed appointment of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general, as federal judge in the northern district of California.

CURRY TO PUSH FLOOD CONTROL BILLS THROUGH

Other than that the need for additional legislation along this line is to be stressed by the administration, no definite program as yet has been outlined. That is being left to Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who has been representing the President in the flood-stricken areas, and whose observations will form the basis of a report, with suggestions as to just what ought to be done to prevent a repetition of such a disaster. Secretary Hoover plans to go to California this summer, and is expected to confer there with Curry. It is possible that decision will be reached at that time to weave into the administration's general formula the scheme which Curry had contemplated presenting as a separate measure, calling upon the federal government to lend a greater measure of cooperation in carrying out the Sacramento-San Joaquin flood control project so as to relieve the property owners of some of the heavy burden they have been carrying. There may be added some scheme for flood prevention on the islands in the delta regions of the San Joaquin.

Curry's effectiveness in piloting legislation through Congress has been more through personal contact off the floor, rather than through the medium of making speeches. He works on the theory that on big issues, it isn't the speeches in Congress that count so much as it is the lining up of support off the floor. As to how this theory works out—well, Curry seldom makes a speech in the House and yet he generally is able to pass the legislation he introduces, and that which comes from the committee of which he is chairman.

Lines of lighted flowers extended from the center table to the end of the room, where Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Terry, the three honor guests of the evening.

SOLITARY PILOT FACES FLIGHT OF MORE THAN 3,500 MILES TO PARIS

Romea Island, "he has passed Fortune," the bulletins read.

Romea Island and Fortune are in Newfoundland. He passed Fortune at 4:55 o'clock Atlantic daylight time, just thirty minutes after passing Romea Island, sixty miles back.

Then he headed out toward the Atlantic, where sun down caught him. He is still going in the dark. The start of this "lone wolf of the sky" was as dramatic and spectacular as has been the other exciting events of his career.

With the first report that the skies between Newfoundland and the Irish coast had cleared he prepared to set out although heavy fogs still hung along the coast.

There was scurrying and excitement around Roosevelt field before dawn and in a few hours Lindbergh was gone.

The luck that gave him his nickname was with him when he started.

"The weather is just right for me. Watch me go," he told Abram Skidmore, chief of police at Minneapolis. "When I climb into this cockpit I am entering my death chamber. If I arrive in Paris it will be like receiving a pardon from the governor."

Then he climbed into his "death chamber" and was off down the runway.

Ground conditions for the start were bad, because of the deep mud. A heavy ground mist shrouded the start. The plane was observed to move. It gathered speed steadily. After it had taxied a quarter of a mile it appeared to strike a lump on the runway.

The plane, the Spirit of St. Louis, bounced into the air, then it fell back to the ground but kept going. It arose again, wobbling. Spectators gasped. He only had a few more feet of the runway.

It looked as though the flight had failed at the start.

But the plane did not settle again. It rose gradually. Spectators thousands of them, could see day light between the wheels and the trees beyond. It rose a little higher and Lindbergh was on his way, after barely missing a shanty at the end of the runway and a few telegraph wires.

He kept rising and soon vanished in the morning mists on his solitary flight of 3,640 miles.

Both Commander Richard Byrd and Clarence Chamberlin, who have also been entered in the non-stop dash to Paris contest, were on the ground when Lindbergh took off. Byrd may have been envious but he was content for his craft is not ready for the flight and he had to witness Lindbergh go ahead of him.

Chamberlin, whose craft, the Bellanca, has been ready for two weeks waiting for fair weather, had to remain behind because of a row and court injunctions among his companions.

Berta and others of the Bellanca group will give up their plans forever, because Lindbergh will have grabbed off the big prize money, over which they are squabbling. But if Lindbergh fails, it was said today, the Bellanca hopes to follow.

Byrd's plane will probably not be ready before tomorrow night. He will attempt the flight whether Lindbergh succeeds or fails.

First hint that Lindbergh planned to hop today came when he left a call at his hotel for 2:15 a. m. This news spread rapidly and the crowds began to gather. Dozens of policemen were called to keep them back from the hangar.

At 2:30 Lindbergh appeared in the hotel lobby, smartly dressed. He made his way to the flying field. Then began the task of filling the gasoline tanks. Four hundred and fifty gallons of gas had to be poured into the tanks. This took time. As the crowd waited they could hear the hum of the motor in the hangar.

Byrd and his companions arrived about four o'clock and joined the crowd. Finally the plane was rolled out. More preliminaries took up additional time. Lindbergh was anxious but not nervous. He had little to say.

Finally he was off.

"God be with him," said Byrd. "I hope he gets there. He probably will. It was a beautiful start considering the load. He is a splendid chap and I certainly hope he gets there."

Then Byrd and his companions returned to breakfast knowing that Lindbergh was on his way to fame and fortune or to death.

SHARKEY KNOCKS OUT MALONEY IN FIFTH ROUND

WINNER EARNS RIGHT TO BOX JACK DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, May 20.—Jack Sharkey, of Boston, tonight stopped Jim Maloney, also of Boston, in the fifth round of a scheduled 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium. The winner is now in line to meet Jack Dempsey in the finals to determine an opponent for Champion Gene Tunney in September.

ROUND ONE—Sharkey tore out with a left to the head. It slipped harmlessly by and Jim carried the ex-gob into the ropes where he smashed him viciously with both hands to the stomach. Jim chased Sharkey into the open and cracked a straight left on his jaw. The Celt tore in close again with a left and right to the body and Sharkey's left opened a small cut over Maloney's right eye. Jim stabbed two lefts to the head but took a rousing barrage about his own head. Jim buried a heavy right deep under Sharkey's head just before the bell.

down to evade punishment. Jim whipped in close again and a straight left set his nose to bleeding. They were sparring again at the bell.

ROUND FOUR—Jack smiled confidently as he peeked a half dozen times at Maloney's bad eye. Jim chased Sharkey to the ropes pounding with both hands to head and body and blood began to trickle from Jack's left eye. Jim plunged both hands into Sharkey's body, but Jack danced out of range and continued his left hand salvo to Maloney's head. Jack's knocked Maloney to the floor, but for no count. He was up as the bell clanged.

FIFTH ROUND—Sharkey came out with a rush as though to get it over quick and sent three straight lefts to the head. Jack followed by driving Maloney to the ropes, with another right to the jaw. Sharkey continued punning Maloney so hard that Referee Magnolia stopped the fight to save Maloney further punishment.

Peacock, Santa Fe twirler, pitched a nice game himself, holding the winners to five scattered hits. The Santa Fe tossers gave him poor support, however, contributing a number of untimely boos.

Baker, new Pullman first sacker, connected for two hits, one a home run in the fifth inning.

Derelict Nine To Cross Bats With Dougalls

By "MERC" GLUM

Hold everything! Richmond's "little world series" will be ushered into its own Sunday, June 5, when the Dougall Hardware nine crosses bats with the stalwart charges of Murry Hannon's "Derelict" nine. The Derelicts, fresh from a victory over the second team of the Richmond Carmen two years ago, will match veteran skill against youth and pep. Fans need no introduction to the personnel of the strong Derelict nine. Above all things Murry Hannon in right field is worth the price of admission alone. Charging Murry makes fly balls look easy by his sensational running catches and at the bat Hannon can match his skill with the best of them.

William Grady, former Western league flash, is signed to don the mask to take care of the deceptive curves of Gilbert Gabbury, sensational Derelict moundman.

"Bud" Hunt, in anticipation of a hard struggle, is acting as trainer for the Derelict aggregation. Manager Archie Kembell of the Dougalls, is all heated up about the coming contest. Here's the mask to take care of the situation. "When I give instructions to my pitchers to bear down I will only give that signal when I am positively assured that extra efforts on the part of my pitcher's to tame the Derelicts are needed. With such sluggers as Merle Anderson, John Medo, and Walter Gordon in the lineup fans can be sure of my munch being on the long end of the score."

Gate receipts derived from the contest will go towards a benefit fund for the crippled children of the city.

AMERICAN NET STARS SET FOR FOREIGN PLAY

(By Universal Service)

Paris, May 30.—"Hunter and I will give a good account of ourselves."

A little and sun-browned William T. Tilden told this to Universal Service today, on the eve of the international tennis matches between France and the United States.

Four singles matches and one doubles contest will make up the series. They will be held on the stadium courts at St. Cloud beginning this afternoon. All eyes are centered in the tall American star, who will face Rene La Coste in the second singles match of the day, in what may prove to be the greatest tennis duel in the history of the sport.

Francis T. Hunter, co-holder of the Olympic doubles championship, which he won with Vincent Richards, and Tilden's partner in the present European net invasion, will meet Jean Borotra, the "Bouncing Basque," in the first match at three in the afternoon.

The slight odds favoring the Frenchman narrowed down to even money tonight after Tilden and Hunter had worked out at St. Cloud yesterday. Both men appeared in fine shape although Hunter seemed a trifle overweight.

Tilden is determined to avenge last year's defeat when he faces LaCoste today. The Tilden-LaCoste match will be the first of a series of contests between the two men who are considered the best in the tennis world, which will last throughout the summer.

By agreement, the international matches between France and the United States will be restricted to the best two out of three sets in order that the players may save themselves for the French National Hardcourt Championship starting Monday. A three set match slightly favors La Coste, since Tilden is a notably slow starter.

"Naturally I would prefer a five set match," Tilden told Universal Service. "However, I am ready. I never felt better in my life and my trick knee is not bothering me. If I am defeated there will be no alibi."

LaCoste had been training faithfully for Tilden whom he regards as "far from through." "We hope to beat him," LaCoste said tonight, "but I realize that I am facing a stiffer battle than I have ever faced before."

Saturday Tilden and Hunter will play a double match against a French team which is as yet not selected. Tilden thinks that the team will consist of Borotra and La Coste, although the Brugnon and Borotra combination, a Davis cup favorite, is being suggested by experts.

Sunday, Hunter plays La Coste and Tilden will face Borotra.

Ed Sullivan's SPORT WHIRL

Three promising young cauliflowerers put in some licks at Madison Square Garden on the Bronx Hospital card.

One was Sid Terris, outstanding contender for the lightweight title held by the somnolent Sammy Mandell of Kockford, Ill.

The second was Ruby Goldstein, who has been watched with a great deal of interest since Ace Hudkins, the Nebraskan, draped him over the ropes last summer at Coney Island.

The third was Bruce Flowers of New Rochelle, a colored lightweight, who has been creating a man-sized racket at the small clubs.

Of the three fighters that New York is grooming to send against the best of the western crop, Sid Terris proved the more impressive to me at least.

Fighting against Stan Loayza, the Chilean, and confronted with an awkward style of opposition, Terris carried off the honors of the evening.

This fellow Terris is improving with every fight. He indicated as much when he fought the slugging Billy Wallace of Cleveland not so many weeks ago. In the Wallace fight Terris theretofore accused of a faint heart, satisfied most of us that the insinuations against his gameness were libels.

Against Wallace he showed that he was developing a real right-hand wallop.

Loayza today will vouch both for Sid's willingness to fight and the force of his right hand.

Terris almost unroofed the Chilean on two occasions.

SID AND RUBY ALIKE IN STYLE

It is difficult to compare two fighters with any degree of accuracy, whether they are contemporaries, or whether they are taken from different eras.

As Johnny Dundee has obligingly pointed out to this scrivener, fighting styles can create a difference that cannot be overcome by punching.

In comparing, therefore, Terris and Goldstein, who are matched outdoors, it is significant that there is no radical difference in fighting styles in these two.

Both of them are stand-up fighters. Neither adopts a crouch or punching stance calculated to upset an opponent by its sheer awkwardness.

Both use the same weaving offensive. Goldstein in fact aped Terris, for Goldstein followed Terris when Sid was the idol on Ruby's own east side.

TERRIS IS A LOT SMARTER

Here we have two fighters practically alike in fighting method and fighting equipment.

Of the two, I think Terris is the better.

In a meeting of the two, I believe that Ruby Goldstein had better pin all of his hopes on one wild right-hand punch, for if Terris is vigilant throughout, I don't believe that Goldstein will hit him hard enough to disable him.

Goldstein moves around spryly. He has a style that is pleasing and impressive.

However, Terris makes smarter moves. He doesn't waste much effort either in footwork or punching. He is a sharpshooter and Goldstein is not.

The on big glaring flaw in Terris is his self-satisfaction. Unconsciously or not, he plays to the grandstand.

For eight rounds he fights beautifully and in the ninth he deliberately courts danger by contemptuous disregard of his opponent's capacities.

He had better not hold Goldstein lightly at any stage of their battle, for Goldstein can hit.

Terris wants to bear down the entire route, never relaxing his vigil for one second.

A GOOD WAY TO BURN UP HYMIE

Terris looks like a good long-shot to knock out Ruby.

By this time I am certain that my good friend, Hymie Cantor, who manages Ruby, is frothing at the mouth and calling down frightful curses on this bald dome.

"(Kibitzer) shrieks Hymie, and perhaps he is right.

On the night of the fight, after and if Goldstein knocks Sid very flat indeed, Hymie will be able to gloat a very thorough gloat. He at least will have the last laugh and the book of etiquette says that the last laugh is the best laugh ever laughed.

However, Terris does look like a good bet to stow away Ruby, for Terris is a sharpshooter with that right hand and Ruby leaves plenty of openings.

of contests between the two men who are considered the best in the tennis world, which will last throughout the summer.

By agreement, the international matches between France and the United States will be restricted to the best two out of three sets in order that the players may save themselves for the French National Hardcourt Championship starting Monday. SAN PABLO TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE MAY 24

San Pablo residents will vote next Tuesday on a $35,000 bond issue for the erection of six additional classrooms to the school building, which is now said to be dangerously overcrowded.

Hall W. Sanders, prominent Richmond attorney, will be the speaker at a program to be staged by the San Pablo school board on Monday evening at the school to inform the voters of the purposes and values of the bond issue. Mrs. Ross Calfee and Archie Winchester will entertain with vocal numbers, accompanied by Emil Esola. A. L. Paulsen will put on his handwriting stunt and a Chinese monologue.

It is estimated that the remodeled building would contain sufficient room to care for the growing district for several years. There would be installed an up-to-date heating system, modern sanitation, adequately lighted rooms and open air windows.

It is figured that an average tax rate of 30 cents on the hundred dollars will be enough to carry the bond issue, principal and interest, and retire the bonds in ten years.

Building Permit Applications To Be Considered

Three applications for building permits will be considered by the Richmond Planning Commission at a public hearing on Monday evening in the council chambers.

The applications are P. M. Sanford to erect a one story fireproof building for light industrial purposes at the southeast corner of Tenth street and Chanslor avenue; F. R. Drake, to erect a service and parking station at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Bissell avenue, and the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company to have closed that portion of Essex avenue lying within the yards of the company plant in North Richmond.

world—will be the busiest scene of shipping that has ever been known and Richmond has the most advantageous location on the whole bay.

Its sea-going commerce has already given Richmond rank among the great ports of the country in point of tonnage, with its docks and wharves handling in excess of 5,000,000 tons annually. Its sixteen miles of deep water frontage, so far as partially developed, affords room for enough additional wharves and docks to accommodate whole fleets of the largest ships.

Richmond has established an industrial leadership over the whole Pacific Coast and is fast improving her position. Ford has purchased an industrial site of 62 acres. The Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company is completing its million-dollar plant. The Republic Steel Package company more than tripled its plant during 1926 and progress and expansion were the rule in factory after factory throughout the community.

The output of Richmond factories during 1926 exceeded 135 million dollars and the industrial payroll was more than 15 millions. In that total payroll are the largest individual payrolls in the entire San Francisco Bay region; and therein payrolls in the entire San Francisco Bay region; and therein lies the secret of Richmond industrial supremacy.

Since the Standard Oil company set the example in 1903, Richmond has been the choice of the Pullman company, Procter & Gamble and one after another of the greatest industrial establishments coming to this coast. Here they find their every need satisfied: Proximity to markets; transportation for raw materials and finished products; level, industrial sites at prices which, for relative location and advantages, cannot be equalled on the Pacific Coast; a climate in which labor effectiveness is 10 to 25 per cent greater than in Atlantic Coast and Middle Western factories; and within 30 minutes of any point in the industrial districts from which to draw labor.

Small wonder that, with this rapidly growing demand for executives, clerks and factory workers, Richmond should be making tremendous strides in that final test of civic greatness—population.

Since 1920, the population of Richmond has increased 80 per cent; 66 per cent of the increase coming since 1923, according to the best estimates which can be computed from school enrollment, water and phone connections, etc. "With every factor essential to tremendous growth established, the most interesting and promising feature which the real estate investor now finds in the development of Richmond is the almost complete lack of an adequate business district and the absence of an apartment house or flat-dwelling population," states C. P. Murdock, president of C. P. Murdock, incorporated.

Richmond 'Harbor Day' Will Commemorate Dredging Work

ing of the channels and turning basins; a representative of the Ford Motor Company and others.

Recognizing that the actual dredging operations will write a significant chapter in Richmond's development the chamber of commerce, according to President P. M. Sanford, believes it is fitting that the people of Richmond be given an opportunity to meet personally the men who are making its development possible.

"Richmond Harbor Day" luncheon will provide this occasion. The cooperation of Richmond's service clubs, public officials and civic leaders in general has been assured in making next Thursday's luncheon a notable success.

While the luncheon comes on Thursday, actual dredging work in the inner harbor is expected to start by Tuesday or Wednesday. The giant dredgers to be used in this important work will be moved into position on Monday or Tuesday, according to T. A. Goodrich, of the Parr Terminal company.

Fred D. Parr, himself, will not be at the luncheon Thursday as he and Councilman W. W. Scott will be enroute to the large industrial cities and important United States harbor cities on a brief tour for the purpose of bringing more industries to Richmond, and to learn first hand of the very latest facilities used in port development. Arrangements for "harbor day" luncheon Thursday are being made by the publicity and harbor committees of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, including E. B. Bull, chairman of the harbor committee; A. L. Paulsen, chairman of the publicity committee; P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber and ex-officio member of both committees; J. E. Brooks, J. E. Galvin, J. A. McVittie, George N. Rooker, M. A. Hayes.

Everyone who wishes to attend the luncheon and meet Congressman Curry and other guests and learn first hand of the significance of the dredging operations is urged either to make reservations in advance at the Hotel Carquinez or to arrive early Thursday. Accommodations for several hundred diners are being arranged.
